GLOBAL Mobile Utility Module to be Showcased at AUSA Symposium

EASTON, Md., July 16, 2009 – Global Strategies Group (North America) Inc. (GLOBAL North America) is pleased to announce that their state-of-the-art Mobile Utility Module (MUM) will be featured as part of the US Army Soldier Systems Center (Natick) display during the Association of the United States Army (AUSA) ILW Army Medical Symposium and Exposition held July 21-24 in San Antonio, Texas.

The MUM interfaces with US Army field hospital facilities incorporating critical force sustainment features into a single structure. The ruggedized and transportable system is one of the Expeditionary Force Health and Welfare Shelter systems produced by the Defense Engineering Division of GLOBAL North America.

Presented with an ambitious deadline and some unique design needs by the Army, the expert technicians and engineers from GLOBAL North America worked around the clock to complete the task on schedule. John Hillen, President & CEO of GLOBAL North America noted, "We are proud to leverage our deep experience to meet critical time challenges delivering our superior force mobility systems and improving the quality of life for troops that are more mobile and expeditionary than ever before."

Under a normal production schedule the process could take 2-3 years but GLOBAL North America was able to call upon their significant tactical experience integrating complex transportable systems to compress the schedule taking the MUMS unit from concept through design, prototype, and test in less than one year.
